TUESDAY, JULY 10.

KENTUCKY HORTICULTURAL SC vere glad to notice during our visit zart Hall on Saturday last that the s summer fruits is now fairly opened, earnestly advise every cultivator, who wish be up with the times, to give his attendance every future meeting of the current year, not only because the universality of the fruit crop will ble vi-itors to see more than in any single season perhaps for years to come, but because this more than genial season is likely to bring things forward in a state of the highest attainable perfection, and of this very desirable result we think several of the articles exhibited on Saturday may serve as a foreshadowing. The Re. Astrachan and Yellow Harvest Apples were decidedly fine, as were also several varieties of the Apricot. Madelaine Pears we have -ver before seen so large and perfect; one conibutor had specimens seven inches in circumterence; those of another were over six and a half inches in circumference, and a plate from a third contributor was scarcely inferior to those measured. By-the-bye we hardly thought that this pear was properly appreciated by the crowd of visitors constantly passing around the tables, owing probably to the fact that there is yet a greenish tinge in the skin when the fruit is in the best condition for dessert, and the bright yellow which, in the Bartlett and some other sorts, denotes a state of perfection, is, in this variety, evidence of overripeness and decline. We entirely concur with the fruit committee in recommending this pear for general cultivation. The flowering season of most of the hardy plants which bloom but once a year having passed away, there was apparent a great falling off in the number of floral designs and of bouquets, but for all that the display was interesting and beautiful, and many articles were gotten up in the best style and with exquisite taste. In the vegetable department we noticed that thes are still growing better, and in nothing was improvement more manifest than in the tomato and potato, the latter of which bids fair to attain those gigantic proportions hitherto confined to a California clime.

JEALOUSY AMONG RATS .- One of our brother editors says that a friend of his had a pet rat which he was in the habit of calling from his tole and feeding. The animal would emerge rom his retreat at the call of his benefactor. and, with the utmost satisfaction, eat from his hand. This was continued for some time, until at last, for two or three days, the pet omitted to answer the accustomed call, and it was thought that he had perhaps paid that natural debt to which rats as well as men are subject. Some days after, however, the gentleman chanced to repeat his call, when very unexpectedly the rat again came forth, but with a very different appearance than he had previously presented. Both of his eyes were torn from their sockets, and one of his ears was among the missing. It was supposed that his less indulged companions had grown jealous of his favor, and, out of a revengeful disposition, had fallen upon him in a body and sated their vengeance by inflicting the above injuries on his person.

We suspect after all that rats are not much

The Albany Evening Journal says that Governor Clark has associated Joseph Blunt, Esq., of New York, with the Attorney General, as counsel in the Lemmon slave case, which is being prosecuted by the State of Virginia.

The question involved in this case is whether a slave-owner has, under the constitution of the United States, the right of transit with his slaves through the State of New York on his way from one slave State to another. The State of Virginia has made an appropriation of several thousand dollars for the defence of the right of transit in the Supreme Court of the United States: and New York, it seems, has employed eminent counsel at its own expense to oppose the right We presume the trial will take place next winter, and the decision will be anticipated with deep interest in both sections of the country. And, when made, it must stand.

How to Eat the Strawberry .- A physi cian in Boston states that the usual accompaniments of the strawberry-sugar and creamdetract very essentially from its healthiness He thinks all the good of the fruit is neutralized and argues that, if nature had intended those substances as a part of the berry, she would have put them within the skin.

STEAMER INGOMAR SOLD.-Messrs. W. B. Greenlaw & Co., of Memphis, have sold the packet Ingomar to Capt. L. McDonald, formerly clerk of the George Collier, for the sum of $50,000. She will be thoroughly repaired and repainted, preparatory to resuming her trips in September as a regular Memphis and New Orleans packet.

Last evening, the imprisoned aldermen and councilmen were brought before Judge Pirtle on a writ of habeas corpus. T. W. Riley, Esq., one of their number, argued for their discharge and Mr. Speed said a few words in reply. Judge P. remanded them back to jail.

Mr. John G. Taylor, of this city, who has fately received an appointment of lieutenant. left yesterday for Fort Davis, Texas, to join his regiment. Mr. T. was a clerk in the post-office under Mr. Edwards.

How the Maine Law Works in New YORK .- The N. Y. Herald of the 6th says:

The liquor law went into operation on the glorious Fourth, and the result has been a very important and most astonishing discovery The general belief of the effect of this extra ordinary law was, that from and after the Fourth it would put an end to liquor drinking and liquor selling by retail "except for medic-inal, mechanical, or sacramental purposes." But the effect is exactly the reverse. The practical working of the law in these parts, thus far, shows that, from being an act of absolute prohibition of the retail liquor business, it is an act of absolute free trade. Anybody may buy and everybody may sell—if we may judge from the numerous examples of buying and selling in all parts of the city—without the expense of a license, and without fear of the law.

The first section of this remarkable law positively interdicts the selling or giving away of any intoxicating liquors, upon any pretence, or for any purpose, in any "tavern, store, grocery, shop, boarding, or victualing house, or 100m for gambling, dancing, or other public amusement, or recreation of any kind," &c. &c., and says that no intoxicating liquor shall be kept or described in any such places in view of the penals. posited in any such places, in view of the penal-ties of the law, which is a pretty clean sweep of the retail trade; but then comes the proviso, which says "this section shall not apply to liquor the right to sell which in this State is given by any law or treaty of the United States.' And here is the loophole of escape. The federal constitution provides that Congress shall have power to regulate commerce, levy duties upon imports, &c. This is th fundamental law. Under it Congress has provided for the admission into New York of foreign liquors as mer-chandise. This comprehends the right to sell and upon this construction Mayor Wood has is ly against interrupting the retail business in French brandy, Holland gin, Jamaica rum, Scotch and Irish whisky, and English beer and

Of course, with this awful hitch in the law, it is a dead letter, and we undertake to say that so it will practically stand till the act is essentially modified or absolutely repealed. The policy of "suppressing intemperance, pauperism, and crime" by an act providing for the universal sale of intoxicating liquors, without the expense of a license, is a new thing under the sun. der this release the liquor sellers ought to be able to retail their homemade French brandy, Irish whisky, and German lagerbier at five cents a glass; and, judging from the start made on the Fourth, we shall not be surprised if, from an increased competition in the retail trade under the law, the cost of a dram should be actually reduced to five cents by the first of August You shall see, anon, it is a knavish piece of

The annexed is also from the Herald:

Increase in the Amount of Imported Liquor in the City.—A person who is in the habit of frequenting bar-rooms has called our attention to the fact, that, since the 4th of July, American liquor has become very scarce, and nothing but imported stimulating beverages can well be had. Over the bars in the liquor stores the following sign is now quite frequent:

NONE BUT IMPORTED LIQUORS SOLD HERE. :

Good apple-jack, inspiriting Monongahela, Albany cream ale, and Philadelphia lager beer are no more to be found, while English ale, are no Scotch whisky, and good French brandy can be had in abundance. Nor is the above-indicated sign confined to so-called respectable houses. have also been seen in several magnificent three cent restaurants in the vicinity of the Five

It is remarkable that these imported liquors have very much the taste and flavor of the comnon article, and, what is more, can be sold as mon article, and, what is more, can be sold as cheap. The enterprise displayed by the liquor dealers in disposing of their American liquor in one night and filling their shops with imported liquor by the next morning, is certainly very extraordinary, and merits this public notice.

N FOR SOILING AND FODDER. -It may be ! sed by some that where hay is so abunas it with the farmers of the West, the nt season, it is useless to recommend soworn for fodder. There are, however, many ons so situated that a crop of an acre or of corn for soiling and for dry feed would e of great benefit to their cattle and particly for dairy cattle near cities and towns. ere is a period during the summer or fall of ery year when pasturage becomes so short d dry that milch cows not only fall off greatly their milk but also in flesh. A small patch of the best of the machines: corn fodder, to be cut up and fed to cows such times, will prove of immense benefit th in keeping up a supply of milk and keepthe animals in good condition through the and winter

When a seed-drill is not at hand, furrows may be opened with the plow and the seed scattered in the whole width of the furrow at the rate of 23 or 3 bushels to the acre, according to the distance the rows are apart—say from two to three

When corn fodder is to be cured, some care is required in putting it up to prevent heating. The best method to accomplish this is to put it up into open narrow ricks, supported by forks or rails; or it may be put up in small shocks, secured to a few stalks left standing for the

The New Orleans papers publish election eturns from thirty-seven out of the forty-eght parishes in the State, for supreme judge, most of them official, which give Merrick, the American candidate for chief justice, 1013 majority.

We are indebted to Mr. J. P. Evans, of Adams & Co.'s Express, for St. Louis papers of Saturday and Evansville papers of yesterday morning.

THE COLUMBUS (O.) RIOT .- The Columbus Journal of Saturday evening contains the evidence given before the coroner's jury in regard to the riot in that city on the Fourth of July, in which the society of German Turners and a portion of the Americans were engaged, and which resulted in the death of a man named Henry Young. The following is the verdict of the jury:

We, the undersigned, jurors empanneled and sworn on the 5th day of July, in the year 1855, in the township of Montgomery, county of Franklin, Ohio, by William Field, a justice of the peace, and acting as coroner for the time being in said county, to inquire and true presentment make in what manner and by whom the decreased whose body was found at the city of ceased, whose body was found at the city of Columbus, in said township and county, on the 4th of July, 1855, came to his death.

After having heard the evidence and exam-After having neard the evidence and examined the said body, we do find that deceased came to his death by the effects of a ball or slug willfully and maliciously discharged from a pistol in the hands of one Gottlieb Mayer, a member of a social company in Columbus, known as the Furners, and to which death said company, as far as they were on parade on said 4th, were more or less accessory.

our farmers are becoming more skilifal in the art of cultivation.

Plowers.—The floral department gave many indications of the march of summer and attested the interest of "the rural districts" in these exhibitions. Mrs. B. C. Levi exhibited a floral basket of a variety of flowers arranged in her nsual cornecttasts. Master Charles Woodruff contributed a beantiful hand bouquet composed principally of a variety of Roses raised and arranged in good style by Master Charles. Moore & Sarb contributed a large pyramid dosign and three choice hand bonquets containing Oleander, Justicia, Fucheisa, Verbenas, Rose, Pinks, Carnations, Geraniums, Honeyanehles, Clover, &c. siehly varietysted and evincing skiliful cultivation. Miss Florence Anderson exhibited a floral basket made up of Jessamices, Piaks, Verbenas, Roses, Geraniums, and a large variaty

TRIAL OF MOWERS IN NEW YORK .- An interesting trial of mowing machines took place, on the 15th ult., under the auspices of the Westchester County Agricultural Society, on the farm of A. F. Dickinson, near New York city.

There were ten machines entered for trial. The committee appointed to report on the machines was an able one. A description of the machines and the full report of the trial we are unable to find room for, but publish the report of the committee upon the most important points

1st. Operation of machines on fair grounds, driven at first by the same driver and team and afterward by the exhibitors themselves or under their direction:

On this point your committee find that the machines of Ketchum, Hallenbeck, Manny, and Allen are of equal excellence.
2d. The lowest and smoothest cut of each machine:

Your committee are of opinion that upon this point there is no marked difference in the four machines just mentioned. 3d. On rough uncleared bottom: Your committee on this point give the preference to Allen's and Russell's machines.

4th. Evennes: of grass as left by the machines for curing: We find the machines with the iron cutter bar have the preference in this respect.

5th. Freedom of knives from clogging:

We are of the opinion that the machines of Ketchum, Manny, Hallenbeck, and Russell, on account of the finger caps not reaching back to the finger board, are least likely to clog.
6th. Amount of power required to perform a given amount of work:

Your committee think there is but little difference in this respect between the machines of Manny, Hallenbeck, and Allen.

7th. Facilities of transportation from one 7th. Facilities of transportation from one field to another and for escaping obstructions in

We believe that Manny's has the advantage over any other in this respect.

GREAT TROTTING MATCH ON THE UNION COURSE.-The 'Fourth" was celebrated among the turfmen by a great trotting match on the Union course, Long Island, between three Northern horses of the best blooded stock in the country. The race was for $2,000 a side to harness, mile heats, best three in five, and the steeds entered were Chicago Jack, Lady Franklin, and Lady Moscow. Lady Moscow won the race in three straight heats Time, 2:37—2:37—2:384

MENOCHIKOFF .- The gallant defender of Sebastopol, who, by his brilliant exploits, his unpretending modesty, and the circumstantial truthfulness of his dispatches, excited the admiration of all Christendom, seems to have sunk into ohlivion. His name is heard no more on the lips of the admiring multitude, and his fame appears to have passed away with the acts that he performed. For a time the world believed him dead; it was said that he died of disease at Simpheropol, yet the omission to note the time or to state the disease cast doubt upon the statement. Another account told that he was dangerously wounded, and a report reached us that he had died of his wounds; but the failure of the Court of St. Petersburg to notice the death of so faithful a subject and a General of such distinguished ability rendered the story of his death more than douhtful. Time, that great resolver of all doubts, has proved that the great Russian captain is not dead, though it has not informed us why he was removed from the position that he filled with such distinguished ability. Whether we regard him as the Minister of the Czar at Constantinople, combatting France and England in their struggle for obtaining the ascendancy in Turkey through the medium of diplomatic subtlety, or as the master spirit in the defense of Sebastopol, he was ever the same great man-cool, calm, and self-reliant. His conduct of the defense of the great fortress exhibited a succession of almost superhuman exertions, that drew their inspiration from the sources of the most exalted courage, the feelings of the most perfect self-reliance, and a full and unflinching confidence in the spirit and determination of the garrison under his command. In the character of his dispatches there was nothing of hravado; indeed hoasting was not one of his qualities, and the only thing in all his official communications that approached it was a sharp sentence in one of his despatches where he said that he would "continue to chastise the Allies day by day for their rashness." In this he kept his word, for certainly he gave them no rest while he remained in command. His night attacks were harrassing and gave his enemies no time for repose.

As a general thing, Menschikoff's despatches differed in tone, not only from the one we have instanced, but also from those of the allied Generals. The latter were anything but perfect specimens of military documents. Raglan appears to have constituted himself recording clerk of the weather, his despatches partaking largely of the nature of detailed meteorological and thermometrical reports. Canrobert did up the grandiloquent in the Gascon style, and told frequently not only what he did do, but considerably more than was done, until at last the public viewed with doubt and distrust the intelligence received hy telegraph from the Crimea, and waited for the statements to be corroborated by the Russian reports. Menschikoff's reports were plain, brief, unvarnished statements of facts, made up from incidents that occurred upon or related to the battle-field, and they chronicled the reverses of the Russians with fidelity, while victories were described with self-possession and graceful modesty. The statements of Canrobert were often contradicted by the next mail; these of Raglan were not worth remembering; but it was a matter of general remark that information obtained through Russian despatches was always reliable. It is certainly true that the career of Menschikoff did much for the honorable reputation of the Russian arms. Even his enemies admitted his great sagacity, ceaseless activity, and untiring energy. The London Times placed him in the first rank of modern commanders, and used him as a model with which to compare the British Generals. very much to their disparagement. The name of Menschikoff was one of terror to the allies, and was a tower of strength to the Russian cause It seemed, from the distinctions bestowed upon him after the battle of Balaklava, that his own smith's forge. But this is a rare occurrence. government shared in the opinions universally entertained outside of Russia, and regarded him as one of the mainstays of the power and glory

Considering all these things, the recall of Menschikoff by Nicholas just before the death of the Czar appears to be passing strange, and is not only one of those remarkable acts that excite surprise, but one that all men desire to hear explained. For a time, as we have said, it was believed that he was dead, but this was a delusion; he lives, but whether he exists honored and respected by his Sovereign, or whether he is in disgrace or in exile, is not known; and the fact is one which the world may probably not be informed of until the historian of the Crimean war shall tell what became of the whi eplumed hero of Sebastopol.

LIEUT. MAURY "ON SHORE."-The American Farmer for July calls attention to an appeal from Lieut. Maury to farmers, which, if they heed, he says, he is prepared "to submit a plan by which as much may be done for agriculture and the sanitary cause by meteorological co operation and observations on the land, as has been done by him at sea for commerce and navigation." How "much has been done for commerce and navigation" by Maury's "Charts" and "Sailing Directions," will appear if we refer to President Fillmore's annual message of December, 1851, in which he says of those charts, they have shortened the passage across the Atlantic by forty days, and adds:

The achievements on the sea quietly and grad-ually effected by Lieut. Maury, although not at-tracting the admiration of the multitude, nor dazzling the beholder with sudden flashes of triumph, have reflected honor upon himself and his country, have brought remote nations in rative proximity to each other; have procomparative proximity to each other; have promoted commerce, by pointing out to the mariner new paths on the great deep, where favorable winds and currents lend friendly aid. His "Wind and Current Charts," and "Sailing Directions," are saving millions of money by shortening the voyages of merchant vessels the Treasury, in his last annual report, stated that he had been officially informed, that in a paper read before the British Association last year, it was estimated in India, that "a set of wind and current charts for the Indian ocean like those that had been constructed for the At lantic ocean, would produce an annual saving to British commerce, in those seas alone, of not less than $1,000,000, and to British commerce in all seas $10,000,000.

In the appeal alluded to, Mr. Maury says:

But this system of research, with its teeming results, is confined to the sea; therefore it may be asked by some farmers, what have we lands men to do with it? I say in reply, that, by extending it to the shore, results altogether as portant to landsmen may be obtained, and that, too, by means equally as simple and as unex

The germination of the seed and the growth of the plant are but the display of a meteoro-logical force, the expression of atmospherica laws, which, when rightly understood, cannot fail to confer upon agriculture and the well being of States benefits as signal as the study of the movements of the same grand machine at sea has conferred upon commerce and navi-

Lieut. Maury has addressed a communication to the American Farmer, detailing the plan of co-operation by which farmers may "put their shoulders to the wheel and belp along the undertaking," and giving his views more at large upon the important subject of a uniform system of meteorological observation on land. This communication will appear in the next number

To the Editors of the Louisville Bulletin: LETTER FROM TENNESSEE.

STEWART Co., TENN., July 2, 1855.

DEAR JOURNAL: As I am detained here, "be-tween the rivers," as this country is familiarly called, detained by business, and have some leisure, I have concluded to give you a letter on matters and things."

I left the vicinity of Paducah, Ky., on Thursday morning last, and came by Murray, in Callo-way county, Ky., Pine Bluff, on Tennessee river, &c., to where I am now, at the house of an "old residenter," one of the first settlers here, and one of the most hospitable men of this most hospitable people. All the way as I came on the crops were in the most flourishing condition and should there be sufficient rain the balance of the season this year must be as remarkable for its fruitfulness and plenty as the last was for the reverse. Indeed, I do not recollect ever to have seen such a prospect before in my whole life. The wheat has generally been harvested and well saved, while the quantity raised is fully as large again as usual and the grain fine. The people are going in for small grain hereafter more than they have ever done heretofore. The oat crop is also unusually large and fine, and has commenced ripening. The corn crop is fully as large as it generally is, and in fine condition—well stalked, the fields clean and well plowed, and so green that it looks almost black. farmers are rapidly "laying by," and a couple of good rains in this month, at the proper time, will completely make it. Of tobacco there is a much smaller crop than usual, owing to planting so much grain, but there is a good stand of plants, which are clean of grass and weeds, and growing

This county is at once one of the poorest and one of the richest counties in Tennessee. Am I asked to explain this paradox? I reply first that the soil, which generally consists of hroken ridges, almost mountains, is among the poorest in the world, while the valleys between are among the richest, producing most luxuriantly and plentifully for him who will cultivate them well; and are watered by the finest springs on earth, and streams clear as crystal making sweet music as the water falls over the rocks, which are here quite plentiful. In the second place, these ridges or hills are almost every where rull of the richest iron ore, in quantities inexhaustible, and covered with heavy timber, to convert into coal to smelt it with; while furnaces are springing up in every direction. And near where I am now, is a site on the Cumberland river most admirably adapted for a rolling mill. It is on the land of Mr. Samuel Downs, at whose house I am now and who is willing to dispose of it at a fair price Several thousand acres adjacent can be procur ed for "coaling" on moderate terms.

In mineral wealth this is therefore one of the richest counties in the State; and there are, I expect, millions of dollars invested in the iron business. The Cumberland Iron Works (rolling mill) are in this county. A lump of (rolling mill) are in this county. A lump of in disobeying the orders of the Circuit Judge in native iron was found near here some years ago. the cases of M. Kean and Nancy Vacaro on pounds, so pure and mal-

For the present adieu.

[From the Sank Rapids Frontierman.] A LONE JOURNEY.—An accomplished gentle-man of fine scientific attainment arrived here last week, en route by Gov. Stevens's survey, to Fort Union on the Missouri river, 719 miles from this place. He makes the journey solitary and alone. We know not whether to he most astonished or amused at his recital of the singular mode he had adopted for performing the trip. He took no supplies whatever with him, but re lies on his gun for subsistence through the route. His entire outfit consists of a gun, ammunition, blank hooks, pen, paper, and scientific instru-ments. He travels on foot, and draws his meager outfit in a small hand-cart, with his own hand. In this unique mode of traveling, he believed he could better acquaint himself with the topography of the country, the soil, and its geological characteristics, than, were he accompa-nied, as is usually the case in such expeditions, by a retinue as compagnons du voyage.

Undisturbed and untrammeled, he proposes by himself to make a tnorough examination of this interesting region of country, transferring to his books as he proceeds in minutiae the result of his observations. The enterprise is worthy of Audubon in his palmy days, when he traversed the wild haunts of Texas, rejoicing in the songs of birds, his dearest companions. were charmed with the courage and enthusiasm of the man. He is yet a young man, but evident-ly belongs to that class of scholars whose enthusiasm for the acquisition of natural science and new information inspires them with the courage to encounter every difficulty and brave every

In these mercenary times we meet with few such, and when we do we cannot but look upon them as adventurous spirits of lofty impulses, divinely commissioned for the purpose of adding through toil and danger to the fund of human knowledge, and thence to the aggregate of hu-man happiness.

At any rate, hut few have the resolution to venture so far. But having crossed the river just opposite town, and drawn his little cart fairly upon the spot from which Gov. Stevens commenced his survey, he bid us a hearty good bye, and started off with a light heart. Over the bluff, away over the prairie, he was soon out of sight.

Altogether it was an interesting occurrence.

object of the journey—the mode in which to be made—it being over the famous a survey, starting at a solid like the survey. survey, starting at a point precisely of town—all made the occasion one of mordinary interest. We learned little ordinary interest. We learned little friend's history. He was, apart from tion, well-fitted for the enterprise he courageously undertaken. He has live the Indian, and with him hunted the buffa traversed the prairie; and always happy, we er in the midst of the plain, at the foot of er in the midst of the plain, at the foot o moss-grown oak in the forest, or on the ba

The delay of hot weather renders caution all more necessary now that it has come. Statist show that the largest number of deaths from prudence happen when a cold spell is sudde succeeded by one of intense heat; and the reasis that people, feeling the change acute thoughtlessly risk their health in the effort get cool. A laborer becomes over-heated, rus, es to the hydrant, drinks cold water to exces and perishes in a few hours. Another perso seeks relief in juleps, cobblers, and other mi-called "cooling drinks," and the result is in creased excitement of the brain, instead of diminished action there, often followed hy sudde death. A third is tempted by fresh fruit, an either eats too much or that which is not rip and he too pays for his indiscretion with his life A fourth, fifth, and sixth violate the laws o health in some other way, and are prostrated by goes, to the end of the chapter.

The virtue of temperance, at this period of the season, cannot be inculcated too strongly. We do not mean temperance in the use of distilled or malt liquors only, but temperance in all things, but especially eating, drinking, and work. A surfeit, when the thermometer is at ninety, is almost certain death. Even a slight overloading of the stomach, or the indulgence in some indigestible article of food, often leads to violent cramps, if not to cholera in its worst form. But to eat too little, or to eschew meats or fruits altogether, as some theorists do, is an error only less dangerous. The safest way is to continue the usual diet, whatever that has been, taking care, however, to indulge moderately that is with temperance. So also with drinking. It is madness to imbibe spirituous liquor in the hope of being cooled; it is folly to injure the digestive organs by excessive indulgence in soda water or ice cream. Nature invariably suffers when attempts are made suddenly to cool a person who is heated. Moderation in all things is indispensable. To jump into a river, to quaff copiously of ice water, or to bring anything else that is cold into sudden contact with the hody, when the latter is heated, is trifling with health and life.

Excesses in work are a fertile source of illness and sometimes of death in sultry weather. No man can perform as much lahor on a hot day or under a vertical summer sun as he can i winter or under cover. It is not only day laborers who are in jeopardy. Any unusual draft upon the nervous or even muscular system is sure to be felt at the seat of life. A wise man will always economise his strength in the sumner. Whoever overworks himself in any way exhausts the nervous power, part of which should have gone to assist the digestion; and the consequence is that when he comes home, fatigued and hungry, to eat a hearty meal, he is struck down by bil ous colic, dysentery, or cholera. To throw off the garments when heated and sit in a current of air is a common error, and the seeds of many a consumption have been planted in this way in healthy men. Be temperate in your labors and in your pleasures, sleeping and in waking, if you would escape the diseases incident to hot weather, and which are so often fatal.—Phil. Ledger.

BOARD COMMON COUNCIL.

JULY 9, 1855. The Board was convened hy order of his Honor, the Mayor, and the following memhers were present:

Messrs. Dunlap, Reasor, Gailbraith, Zeigler, Weaver, and Haydon. The following message from the Mayor was presented, but a quorum not heing present, the same was laid over till next Thursday evening:

Mayor's Office, July 9, 1855.

To the General Council: GENTLEMEN-As you are aware, the Judge has ordered a portion of of the Circuit Court the General Council to he imprisoned in the jail of Jefferson county for alleged contempt application for a mandamus to enforce the granting to them a tavern license with the privilege of selling ardent spirits. That order of the Circuit Judge directs that such license he granted to M. Kean and Nancy Vacaro. The failure, on the part of some of the memhers of the General Council, to grant the license as directed, has occasioned their imprisonment, which, by order of the Circuit Judge, is to continue till the license be granted, or until the further order of the Court. In view of these facts you have been con-vened for the purpose of taking such steps as to the granting of the license as to you may seem advisable and proper.

Respectfully,
JOHN BARBEE, Mayor. Whereupon the Board adjourned to meet again on Thursday evening, at 8 o'clock.

ED. COCKE, Clerk.

To the Ladies.

OH, there is a pleasure in selling
To ladies who wish to buy;
But others say there is no telling
How to suit both the mind and the eye.

Some have dirty stores, and their cases Would soil any nice lady's glove, And I am not surprised that grimaces Are used by those ladies who love

To see the nice cases and covers
To books, which are first of their kind,
With the nest little pens and pen-holders
And note paper doubly refined.

At A. Hagan's you should call for these, On Third street, near the Post-office place, For Adam's polite, and will please Every lady of beauty or grace.

On Monday afternoon, the 25th ult., an affray took place in Clinton, La., between Mr. Wesley Rourke and Mr. Win. Nettles, both of the parish of East Feliciana, in which Mr. Rourke parish or East Fenerana, in which and Routher received three severe wounds, one below the ribs on the left side, proving fatal, causing his death in about twenty minutes. Mr. Routher was the father of a family, and about 45 years of age. He enjoyed the reputation of a peaceable and good citizen. The dispute which caused the affray arose from some misunderstanding about a game of billiards in which the parties were engaged.

B. Seals, disorderly conduct. Bail in $200 for three months. George Goodsby, Julia Goodsby, and Ann Gray, stealing a watch and cbain from Charless W. Thurthon. Mr. f. testified that on Saturday evaning he bung his watch over the mantelpice at his residence orner of Walnut and Floyd streets, and stepped out of doers. He saw the three accused in front of his house, and thinking that he was acqualated with them invited them in to take something to drink. They went in and drank, and when T. saw them in the light suspected and put his pocket-book in his pocket, leaving the watch hanking up. They remained some time and finally said they would stay all night. Witness said, "I'm d.—d if you do." Julia asked him into the hall. He went thers, when one of accused locked the door and all of them remained in the room. They then took his watch and ran off. Mr. T. pursued but could not catch them. The watch is worth $35. The accused were arrested on Sunday evening half a mile below New Albany. George had the watch in his fook and Julla land the chain in her stocking. Ann was some distance off. Bail of each in $1000 to appear. Committed. Ann, who is by the way the handsomestof the two women, avery that she had nothing to do with the stealing of the watch and chain, and was not in the room when they were taken.

BOARD OF ALDERMEN.
THURSDAY EVENING, July 5th, 1855.
Present—E. D. Weatherford, President, and

A message was read from Mayor Barbee, stating that a majority of 973 votes had been cast at the late election in favor of the ordinance to approve and confirm the purchase of the property known as Strader and Thompson's wharf, and that also Duvall received a majority of 1,897 votes for the office of City Treasurer, which was referred to the Committee on Elections, and after examination Ald. Burton reported the fol-

Mayor's message on the election returns for the votes cast in favor of approving the purchase of Strader and Thompson's wharf be entered of record, as the action of said Council thereon, and that certificate of election be awarded to Alex. Duvall as City Treasurer, elected to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Henry S.

A message was read from Mayor Barbee, ask ing the General Council to reconsider the ordinance passed at last session regulating the levy of city taxes for the year ending March 9th, 1856, prescribing the duties of Collectors and framing their compensation, and amend the same so as to allow the Collectors to levy on and sell the personal property of tenants for nonresident owners, as required by article VI., Sec. 16 of the City Charter, which was referred to Revision Committee.
